

In 16th century Naples, 'flatbread' was referred to as 'pizza' (from the Latin word Pitta). Known as the dish for poor people, it was sold in the streets and not considered a kitchen recipe for many years. Oil and tomatoes were only added as toppings after Europeans came into contact with the Americas. However, rich people would not dare to eat the pizzas as they were considered poisonous!

Pizza became famous and popular thanks to Napolitan Pizzaiolo Raffaele Esposito who in 1889 created a pizza for the visit of King Umberto I and Queen Margherita of Savoy. The pizza evoked the colours of the Italian flag – green (basil leaves), white (mozzarella), and red (tomatoes). This combination was named Pizza Margherita in her honour.

Since then pizza became an accepted kitchen recipe served all over Italy and eventually all over the world.

"La pizza è come l'amore: o si fa bene o non si fa."
